About 3:00amEmma called, her son Roman for help. She was having a heart attack combined with a stroke. An ambulance was called to her home. Roman and Jean (Lois) woke the kids to inform them of the call, then drove to Emma's while they waited for the Ambulance to arrive. Emma died 36 hours after she made the call to Roman. Up to the day of the heart attack/stroke, Emma was still driving herself anywhere she needed to be. She needed no ones help in her daily living. The car she used in her daily commutes was:nA two door, blue and white, 1964 Chevey Impola she purchased new. The car is now in Roman's possession, along with bedroom set and an old wooden table. The table can be disassembled by unscrewing the leggs that are very heavy and well decorated.
